Can Dugway win the Triple Crown?

By SCOOP BIAS

TFL Today

DUGWAY, Utah — It would be the best season in TFL history.

It would take a combination of luck and talent so impossible to combine, only one team has come close.

It could happen this year. With only three weeks left in the regular season, the Dugway Experiments are leading the TFL in the two regular season races: best record and most points.

Only one team in the seven previous seasons has won both the regular season and points scoring titles.

If Dugway holds on, the Test Tubes can win the TFL's Triple Crown by adding a victory in the Sweeney Bowl.

Close call

Only one team in TFL history has had a chance to win the Triple Crown after the regular season ended.

In 1992, Bagdad won the first two legs (regular season and points), but choked in the playoffs, losing to Scarborough in the semifinals.

TFL Capsules

By Scoop Bias, Dugway Herald

After this week's games, the playoff picture will be a lot clearer. Five teams (Sarasota, Bagdad, Alaska, Narcoossee and Marley) have basically been eliminated from the T. Rex hunt. Dugway is in and will probably earn a bye in the first round.

Two more teams (Limerick and Anchorage) can be eliminated with losses this week.

And at some point the lucky streaks East Hartford and Baltimore have to end.

Dugway
at Denver

Records: Experiments 9-2; Pyles 6-5.

Series: Denver leads 5-3.

Line: Experiments by 5.

Outlook: Dugway clinches the Barbarino title with a win, so Denver needs this game real bad. Worse, the Pyles must win two of their final three for their first winning season since 1991, so they can't afford a loss here.

Pick: Denver 43, Dugway 38.

Anchorage
at Bagdad

Records: Kitchen 5-6; Newts 4-7.

Series: Bagdad leads 3-2.

Line: Kitchen by 2.

Outlook: This is a matchup of two of the four lowest scoring teams in the league. While the playoffs races are getting hot, they're selling Pee Wee tournament tickets.

Pick: Anchorage 12, Bagdad 10.

Narcoossee
at Alaska

Records: Nose Apes 4-7; Oosiks 4-7.

Series: Narcoossee leads 8-1.

Line: Nose Apes by 3.

Outlook: Feel free to walk in tall grass. If there are any snakes about, they are sure to bite one of these two teams who have combined to give up 920 points this year.

Pick: Narcoossee 68, Alaska 67.

East Hartford
at Dutch Harbor

GAME OF THE WEEK

Records: Ex-Eskimos 7-4; Dawgs 7-4.

Series: East Hartford leads 3-2.

Line: Dawgs by 8.

Outlook: This is getting sad. Can't anyone score more than 12 points against the East Hartford defense? The Exmos are scoring less than 30 points a game, and yet, have won five straight. Now they meet another division leader in what might be a battle to see who gets a first-round bye in the playoffs and an automatic berth in the Sweeney Bowl semifinals.

Pick: East Hartford 1, Dutch Harbor 0.

Willow
at Baltimore

Records: Weasels 6-5; Barons 7-4.

Series: Willow leads 5-1.

Line: Weasels by 2.

Outlook: Mr. Unlucky, meet Mr. Lucky. Willow can't catch a break, despite having one of the best teams. Baltimore can't lose, despite having a team that can't score any points. Look for more of the same.

Pick: Baltimore 29, Willow 22.

Marley
at Sarasota

Records: Wailers 4-7; Sharks 3-8.

Series: Marley leads 2-1.

Line: Wailers by 10.

Outlook: This might be a preview of a first-round Pee Wee tournament game. Sarasota needs to score 64 points in three games to avoid the lowest points record.

Pick: Marley 30, Sarasota 13.

Limerick
at Flint

Records: Loons 5-6; Bison 6-5.

Series: Tied 1-1-1.

Line: Bison by 7.

Outlook: Limerick still thinks it can make a run and defend its Sweeney Bowl title. They'll have to win all three remaining games. Flint can still win the division.

Pick: Flint 42, Limerick 33.

Dugway bids for Triple Crown

By SCOOP BIAS

TFL Today

Bagdad owner Scott Lacy looks back on 1992 season, shakes head as he searches answers that just aren't there.

"It was simply too much for me to field a great team and run the league at the same time," Lacy says. "That, more than anything, kept me from winning the Triple Crown."

It was a rare moment of candor in a lengthy interview with the once-great TFL owner, who has fallen on hard times since he has fallen for Jennifer Lipnick.

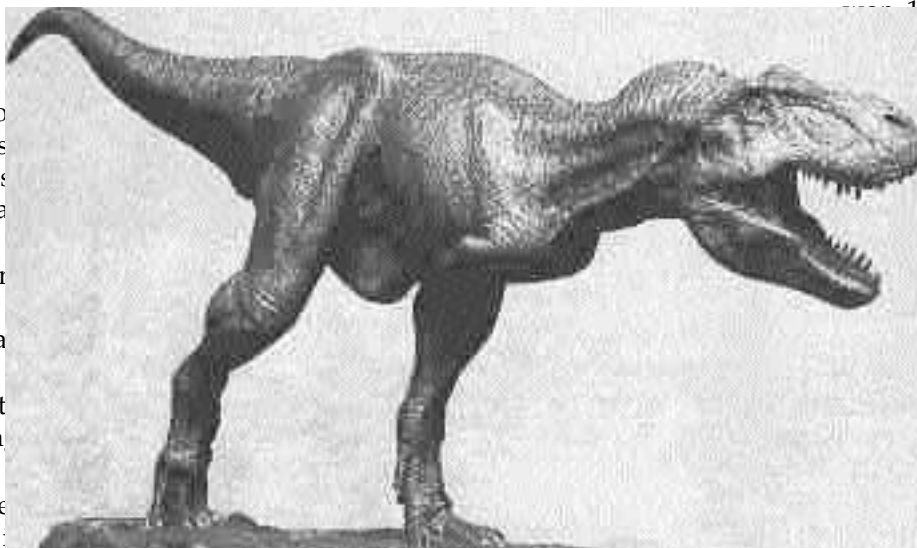

In 1992, Lacy's Newts finished 10-4, tied for the best record in the league with the Point Hope Penguins.

Because Lacy was the points scoring champion, he won the regular season title in a tie-breaker.

To this point, it is the only time one team has won both the regular season and points scoring championships.

If Lacy could have won the Sweeney Bowl, it would have given him the first sweep of the three major titles in a TFL season, an accomplishment few could ever hope to duplicate.

However, Lacy lost his semifinal playoff game in a bizarre fashion that killed his hopes for the Triple Crown.

The Newts and Scarborough Stunting Caesars finished their semifinal game tied 25-25.

Lacy, in his first year as commissioner, had forgotten to keep the rules TFL founder Ken Sain had established, so he had no way to break the tie.

Lacy and Scarborough owner Michael Bourque made an agreement, which Lacy has since regretted. They would flip a coin three times, and whichever owner won two of the calls, would advance to the title game.

Then they would split whatever prize money they won combined.

Bourque won the coin toss, and went on to defeat East Hartford 31-16 in Sweeney Bowl III. Bagdad, however, lost the third-TFL's first Triple Crown.

"If I would have had a rule in then that we do now, I would have gone on to the title game and won, so in fact, I should be the first Triple Crown winner," Lacy says.

Asked to explain how he has fallen so far since that season, Lacy responds:

"In 1992, when I first displayed my potent combination of genius and charisma, winning the Triple Crown wasn't that big a deal.

"I fulfilled my need to dominate fantasy football then, so I've moved on to something else — to fulfill my need for eternal love."

Still, Lacy is quick to remind what a great coaching job he did in 1992.

"That's the year I took Timm Rosenbach in the fifth round," he says. "I lost 10 games with Timm Rosenbach, if that's not counting what he did at coaching, what he did is."

Lacy does not get credit for winning the Triple Crown in 1992, since Bourque's risk-stained name won the T. Rex instead of his.

However, a second team position to be the first Triple Crown winner in TFL

Dugway leads the regular season title race by two games with three to play.

The Experiments also lead the points scoring race by 35 points over Narcoossee, who stumbled with a three-point game last week.

If the Test Tubes are able to hold on and with both titles, they will be only two victories away from the Triple Crown, since they will receive an automatic bye into the semifinals.

"Dugway is like a freight train headed down hill, they can't be stopped," Lacy says.

"Bullshit," Dugway owner Ken Sain says, who refused to comment on his chances.

Lacy did say he will be back.

"I'm like a beach ball held below the surface, you can only hold me down for so long before it comes back up."

D-ing it up, Exmos style

By PEARL NICHOLAS
Hebron Biweekly Bugle

HEBRON, Conn. -- The Purple People-Eaters. The Steel Curtain. Orange Crush. Get ready to add another name to football's all-time greatest defenses:

The Uncanny X-Men.

The East Hartford Ex-Eskimos are on one of the most unprecedented runs in TFL history. After their 23-3 victory over Narcoossee — setting a franchise record for fewest points allowed — the Exmos have won five in a row and hold a one-game lead in the Kotter Division.

During the streak, the Exmos (7-4) have allowed an average of 13.4 points a game, helping make up for an offense that in the same span is scoring 26.2 points. East Hartford leads the TFL in fewest points allowed.

"With all due respect to one of the league's original franchises, the Denver Pyles, who invented the concept of D-ing up, I'd have to say we've perfected it," owner Chris Reidy said Tuesday at his weekly press conference. "Has there ever been a run like this? I mean, just look at how we started, allowing 12 points then 11 in back-to-back weeks. That in itself has to be some kind of record."

When the Exmos' performance was compared to that of another member of the Original Six, Baltimore's "30-point Wonders" of 1996,

The Anchorage Times

Yeah, that's East Hartford owner Chris Reidy in the foreground, but look behind him. Could that actually be the back of Willow owner Van Williams' head? STOP THE PRESSES! We have proof the invisible man, Williams, really does exist!

Reidy was quick to dismiss the analogy.

"Baltimore? Please," Reidy said. "I mean, have the Crabs — er, Mania, or Colts or whatever they are these days — ever won five games in a SEASON, let alone five in a row? Besides, the way they're scoring points these days, they look more like the '95 Marley Wailers."

Still, though the Exmos are now tied for the league's second-best record, they don't figure to move up very far in the TFL Power Poll, a nebulous bit of number-crunching that makes the Theory of Relativity seem as simple as counting your toes. The exact criteria, much like those for the NFL's quarterback-rating system, have never been published.

East Hartford entered the week at No. 11, with 65.8 points; Narcoossee, despite a sub-.500 mark, was No.1 with 89.8.

"Oh yeah, that Power Rangers Poll," Reidy said. "Wasn't that thing invented so the commissioner could rank his team No.1 every week?"

"Or, I guess this season, so Sain could rank the team he considers his biggest threat No.1, thereby jinxing them?"

"I'd sure figure that a 7-4 record, plus a victory over the No.1 team, would count for something. But I'll probably DROP a spot or two. I think that thing is done by the same pollsters who told George Bush to blow off the economy issue in '92."

Sain gets ready for AFFO game

By SCOOP BIAS
TFL Today

Perhaps Charlie Brown has forgotten he's a loser. How else do you explain Dugway owner Ken Sain adding Michael Westbrook to his team on Tuesday?

"Yes, we made this move for only one reason, the AFFO game," Sain said.

TFL owners voted to join the American Fantasy Football Organization last July and to compete for the first-ever International Fantasy Football Championship.

That game is played during Week 16. All four teams in the Sweeney Bowl semifinals must submit lineups to the AFFO. The two teams who win their TFL games will have their scores count in the AFFO rankings to determine who has the best fantasy football team in the world.

"In their rules, you have to start three wide receivers, and I wasn't going to go into that game with Lamar Thomas as my third wide receiver. Westbrook gives my team a little more fight, if you know what I mean."

Does that mean Charlie Brown admits his team is destined for the TFL semifinals?

"Well, it looks good," Sain said. "All I need to do is win one of my final three games, and I get the first-round bye, so chances are I will be one of the TFL's four teams competing for the AFFO title."

▲ STICKING TO THE FORMULA: Elsewhere in this newsletter, East Hartford owner Chris Reidy made some factual errors TFL Commissioner Sain took great offense to.

"Reidy says I never explained how I determine the Power Poll ranking," Sain said. "The first thing I did when I introduced the new Power Poll was to put the formula down in print for everyone to see. I wanted to distance myself from Scott Lacy's poll, which face it, was basically him ranking teams according to however he felt at the moment.

"And then I repeated the formula again this year before the first ranking came out. So Reidy is dead wrong."

Sain said the formula for determining the Power Poll is quite simple:
2(TP - H - L / TG - 2)

TP is a team's total points. H is its high-game total. L is its low-game total. TG is the total number of games played.

"All this does is get rid of your aberrations, both high and low, and gets down to what you average per week," Sain said. "Then you multiply that by two so we can see if you're an A(90 or better), B, C, D or worse team."

Sain also demanded an explanation on how the latest line is computed.

"All the latest line is, is how many more points per game you or your opponent are averaging over the other. I don't make this up. That's Scott Lacy's schtick."

▲ COVER JINX CONTINUES: Sain was so angry at the editorial decision to put Dugway's Triple Crown hopes on the cover of this week's TFL Today, he has refused to talk with this reporter.

"Look at what happens every time you do a cover story," Sain said, before the boycott began. "You do a story on the Tubes great start, BAM, they lose two straight. You do a story on Sarasota's woeful start, BAM they win two straight. You do a story on Lacy, saying stick a fork in him, and BAM, he wins a game.

"Then you go and put Jeff George on the cover of the TFL Today, pointing out how he's leading the league in scoring, BAM, he has his first 0-point game of the season.

"Your dedicating your cover to the Tubes' Triple Crown hopes guarentees they won't win it."
